

Death of a Soldier by Philip Prowse

- 1 Student's own answer.
- 2 No written answer.
- 3 David
- 4 Student's own answer. Answer based on:
David and Pete talked about Liverpool. David told Pete about Carol (page 9).
- 5 Student's own answer. The letter might tell Carol about the weather in Belfast, about where he lives, about meeting Pete, about joining a patrol. The letter might not tell Carol about getting bullets, about 'Soldiers go home' on the wall of the house, about people dying every day, about children shouting at the patrol and throwing stones at them, about somebody shooting at them.
- 6 The O'Donnells had three children. ... Mr O'Donnell said, 'Let them come in.' ... The other man, called Frank, took a gun out of his pocket. ... The children were playing in the street. ... Frank saw three soldiers out of the window. He shot David.
- 7 Student's own answer appropriate to the story.
- 8 Student's own answer. Students need to include only what each person knows about what happens in the story.
- 9 Student's own answer.

The Long Tunnel by John Milne

- 1 Student's own answer. The aim is not to get the answers 'right' but to make sensible decisions based on the chapter headings. Students could justify their answer in their own language.
