Introduction

Welcome to Effective Reading, a four-level reading course specially designed to meet the needs and interests of students studying English in universities. Effective Reading is different from other course books of its kind in the following principle ways:

High interest reading texts

The main aim of Effective Reading is to provide reading texts of high interest to university students. Too often course books aimed at an international audience contain content that is either uninteresting or simply irrelevant to students, making it difficult for teachers to keep students engaged in the material. In Effective Reading, all reading texts have been written specifically to match the interests of young adults. To increase student interest in reading materials, scholar Anthony Bruton (1997) recommends avoiding '(a) general topics with the predictable liberal slant, often communicating nothing that is new; (b) topics of technical or scientific interest to which nothing can be added; (c) culturally distant and anecdotally irrelevant topics; and (d) narratives with a high cultural content.' We took this advice to heart when selecting and developing reading texts in order to maximize student interest, while ensuring that the content is still appropriate for an academic institution.

Reading skills development

Effective Reading teaches reading skills and strategies to help students become more efficient and successful readers. Skills such as skimming, scanning and guessing word meanings from context are found in every unit. Effective Reading also promotes the practice of extensive reading. Information on how to read extensively, as well as extracts from Macmillan Graded Readers, give students the opportunity to discover that reading in English at their level of difficulty can be an enjoyable way to develop reading skills, as well as other language skills.

Academic vocabulary development

University students need to be able to read English materials relating to their major, and this requires consolidating their existing knowledge of vocabulary commonly used in academic settings. To reinforce the vocabulary support in Effective Reading books 1–4, the Teacher's Files provide additional vocabulary exercises and tests on words selected from the Academic Word List (a list of words which are common in academic texts).

Improving vocabulary knowledge is dependent on good dictionary skills. Using examples from the Macmillan English Dictionary, the Teacher's File provides dictionary skills exercises to increase students' familiarity with English-English dictionaries and to help students use them more effectively.

Overview of Effective Reading books 1–4

Each book is composed of 12 units, with two reading texts per unit. The format of each unit is as follows:

PRE-READING EXERCISES

These exercises activate the reader's background knowledge to make the text more accessible, preview key vocabulary and stimulate interest in the text.

FIRST READING TEXT

This is the main reading text of the unit. The core language (vocabulary and grammar) exercises are drawn primarily from this text.

POST-READING EXERCISES

The first post-reading exercise checks general comprehension of the first reading text. The second post-reading exercise highlights specific sentences and expressions from the text, which are typically problematic for learners. Rather than waiting for the teacher to explain or translate the text, this exercise gives students a chance to find the answers on their own.

LANGUAGE DEVELOPMENT AND SPEAKING EXERCISES

These exercises provide extended work on essential vocabulary and grammar from the first reading text. Only language items which are common in natural English use are selected, as these are words and structures which students are likely to encounter again and again in their future English study. The speaking exercises give students the chance to reflect on and evaluate the first reading text, as well as personalize the content.

SECOND READING TEXT AND READING SKILLS WORK

The second reading text is shorter and slightly simpler in language than the first reading text. In this section, students further develop specific reading skills such as skimming, scanning, reading speed, guessing word meanings from context, and so on.

NOTES ON FIRST TEXT

Culture notes

Granada is a city in the region of Andalusia in the south of Spain. It is home to one of Spain's greatest monuments, the Alhambra. Granada has a population of 237,000. The city is considered one of the best places to study in the country, and the university, which was officially founded in 1531, has an excellent reputation.

Chicago is a city in Illinois in the Midwest of the USA. It has a population of around three million, which is the third largest population in the USA. Around 30 million foreign visitors come to Chicago each year. Foreign students study at the university and in private language schools. There is great rivalry between the South Side and North Side of Chicago, and the two baseball teams, the Chicago Cubs from the North Side, and the Chicago White Sox from the South Side, epitomize this. The White Sox play in the American League and won the World series in 2005.

Vocabulary notes

Jambón Serano is a dry-cured ham that is served in thin slices. In British English trousers is used while in American English pants is used. In British English pants are men's underwear.

NOTES ON FIRST TEXT

Culture notes

Shanghai is China's largest city. It is the centre of China's modern economy and one of the main cultural, financial and industrial centres. Once a fishing town, Shanghai is now one of the busiest ports in the world. Its recent growth started in 1992 when the Chinese government authorized economic reforms.

It is difficult to calculate Shanghai's exact population but it is estimated at around 17 million. It is thought to have increased by 25% since 1990.

There is a huge construction program all over China but Shanghai's is considered the most extreme. Many buildings are known for their unique style and to many people the cityscape looks like something from a futuristic film.

Vocabulary notes

A swamp is an area of very wet land, often overgrown with grass or trees. A large area with a number of swamps is called swampland.

The rock bed is the layer of rock below the earth's surface. (Compare seabed = the bottom of the sea)

Very tall buildings are sometimes called skyscrapers because they 'scrape the sky'.

Subway is used in American English, while underground or tube are more frequent in British English. Some learners may have heard metro, which is used in most of Europe.

Congestion charge hits London drivers

In 2003 the British Government introduced a congestion charge in London. This means that some drivers (a) have to/don't have to pay to drive in the centre of the city. The charge started at £5 a day but went (b) up/down to £8 a day in 2005. London is the biggest city in the world to have a charge of this kind.

The idea of the charge is to make more people travel (c) by private/on public transport, use a bicycle or walk. This reduces the number of cars and lorries in the city centre, makes journeys (d) faster/slower and causes less pollution.

Any driver who enters, leaves or moves from one place to another (e) inside/outside the city centre between 7.00 (f) in the morning/in the evening and 6.30 (g) in the morning/in the evening from Monday to Friday must pay the charge.

The congestion charge (h) is popular/isn't popular with people who want to see the amount of traffic on the roads reduced but is (i) very popular/not so popular with London's millions of drivers.

NOTES ON FIRST TEXT

Culture notes

The Green Magic Tree House Hotel is in Kerala in Southwest India. The area has many tea, coffee and spice plantations. The tree houses were built by local craftsmen using traditional building techniques so the trees are not damaged.

There are several ice hotels around the world. The ICEHOTEL in Jukkasjärvi is probably the most famous and is in the area of northern Scandinavia known as Lapland. Although everything is made of ice, meals are cooked and eaten in a separate building nearby.

Jules' Undersea Lodge is in Florida. It was once a research laboratory. It is filled with compressed air, which stops water entering.

Vocabulary notes

A plantation is an estate where crops are grown on a large scale, usually in a tropical country. Typical collocations are tea/coffee/banana/rubber plantation.

A reindeer is a large mammal that lives in the Arctic and North America, where it is also called caribou.

Lodge has various meanings. It can mean a small house used for a seasonal activity, like hunting. It is often used, as in the text, as part of the name of a large house or hotel.

Taprobane Island

Taprobane Island in Sri Lanka is a private island with just one luxurious five-bedroom villa. Rich guards can rent the island for their family and friends. It was built in the 1920s and is only a hundred metres from the views. Guests can wade through the water to get to the island but many prefer to go across by elephant. From every part of the hotel there are amazing tourists of the sea. Guests have their own coast, a cook, a gardener and security butlers.

NOTES ON FIRST TEXT

Culture notes

The New World stars Colin Farrell as American colonial leader John Smith, who was supposedly saved from execution by the Native American princess Pocahontas. She was the daughter of Chief Powhatan, who had sentenced Smith to die. Students may know Colin Farrell from the 2006 film Miami Vice.

Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, a film adapted from a famous children's story by Roald Dahl, came out in 2005 and starred Johnny Depp.

In the 1970s a number of ideas were tried in American movie theaters. As well as the scratch cards mentioned in the text, 3D glasses allowed viewers to see a three-dimensional image of the movie and, during disaster movies like Earthquake, viewers' seats vibrated during certain scenes.

Vocabulary notes

NOTES ON FIRST TEXT

Culture notes

Addiction to shopping is also often referred to as compulsive shopping or compulsive buying. It is not treated as a true disorder, but it is estimated that around ten percent of the people in any country may be affected by the condition.

Cola, like most soft and fizzy drinks, is damaging because of the high sugar content and acidity, both of which cause tooth decay. It can be addictive due to the caffeine it contains. People who stop drinking cola after drinking it regularly complain of bad headaches and loss of concentration.

Vocabulary notes

In American English store is used far more frequently than shop. In British English shop is used more frequently. In British and American English a department store is a big store that sells a range of products.

In American English can is used more widely and frequently than tin (e.g. a can of beer; a can of tomatoes). In British English tin is more frequently used for food (e.g. a tin of tomatoes) while can is always used for drinks (e.g. a can of beer; a can of cola). If the tin or can is empty, it is sometimes called a tin can.

A parcel (British English) is something wrapped in paper and either comes in the post or is a present from somebody. In American English, package is used more frequently than parcel.

The Champs-Élysées is the most famous street in Paris. The French call it la plus belle avenue du monde (the most beautiful street in the world). The Parfumerie Guerlain is hugely popular. The Guerlain family has been producing perfume since 1828.

Tokyo became a fashionable shopping city during the 1960s, partly due to hosting the Olympic Games in 1964. Ginza is an upmarket, notoriously expensive area. It is home to the Sony Building and the Apple Store. Harajuku has a reputation for being weird and wonderful and is the place to spot celebrities.

The most famous streets for shopping in New York are Fifth Avenue, Madison Avenue and 57th Street. Delis (delicatessens) are stores that sell speciality foods, especially from other countries, as well as tasty sandwiches. Delis are particularly authentic in New York as so many immigrants have influenced the food. The window displays at Christmas in New York are very important. Shops like Macy's and Bloomingdale's create impressive displays that often depict scenes from famous films.

Vocabulary notes

Designer products are expensive products that have brand names that everyone recognizes. Armani and Prada are examples of famous designer brands.

A boutique (pronounced /bu'tik/) is a small shop that sells fashionable or unusual clothing.

Research shows that around 50% of people meet their future partner through family or mutual friends. Around 30% of people meet at school, college or work. Some research claims that nowadays 20% of people meet their future partner online. Most people still think that meeting somebody in unusual circumstances, like on the train or on holiday, is romantic.

Various reasons have been suggested for the fact that people are finding it more difficult to find a long-term partner. People now spend more time at work and women are more selective about their partners – they no longer have to think only about security and protection.

Some people believe that speed dating came from an idea that was thought of in the 1990s as a way of ensuring that young Jewish people met each other in cities where they had few friends. Some research claims that since initial attraction is based on smell, three or four minutes is enough time to decide if somebody is wrong or right and so speed dating is a natural process. Critics say that this reduces us to the status of animals.

Gretna Green

Gretna Green is a small village in the south of Scotland but it's not just any village. People all over Britain know it as the place where young couples (a) elope/elapse/erase to get married.

In Britain and Wales you must be 18 to marry without your parents' (b) consent/conscript/conflict. In Scotland, though, you can be married at 16 and you don't need your parents to give you permission.

It all started in the eighteenth century. In Britain you had to be 21 to get married and you needed your parents' (c) consent/conscript/conflict. In Scotland, boys could marry at 14 and girls at 12, whether their parents liked it or not. Many young couples from England went to Scotland to get married (d) secretly/silently/steadily. Gretna Green was the first village across the Scottish (e) border/barrier/barber and so thousands of them married there.

Not many people (f) elope/elapse/erase to Gretna Green these days but it is still very popular. People from all over the world choose it as a romantic (g) venue/value/virtue for their wedding.

Culture notes

Llanelli lies on the south coast of Wales, close to Swansea, which is the second largest city in Wales. The area is well-known for its mining, its beer brewing and its rugby. Traditional Welsh beer is likely to be a strong dark beer rather than the lighter lager brewed in Poland.

Poles are the sixth largest national group in Europe. It is estimated that there are 50-60 million people of Polish descent in Europe. There are 38 million Poles in Poland and around 20 million people of Polish extraction living outside Poland. Between 500,000 and a million Poles are currently living in Britain. The highest level of migration to Britain occurred during and after the First and Second World Wars, when millions of Polish Jews were displaced from their homeland.

Vocabulary notes

Heart and liver transplants are now common. Both were first done successfully in 1967.

The first hand transplant was in 1998.

In 1970 a monkey's head was transplanted for the first time. A human head transplant is possible but it is considered unethical and there is little benefit in the operation.

Brain transplants are a long way off.

Face transplants are extremely complex and it will be a long time before they are common. There is also the problem of finding a donor and ethical issues have to be considered. Surgeons predict that there will only be around 20 operations in the next five years.

Face transplant patient Isabelle Dinoire, who is French, had taken a drug overdose and was unconscious. Her dog sensed that something was wrong and tried to wake her. In doing so, he bit off parts of her face. She woke up to find she had suffered horrific injuries.

Vocabulary notes

Surgery and operations mean more or less the same thing (e.g. he needed surgery/he needed an operation). Surgery is an uncountable noun, while operation is a more concrete, countable noun.

A donor is somebody who gives something to help others. It is typically used to talk about giving money to charity or, as in the text, to give a body part, either while still alive (live donor) or after death (deceased donor). The verb is donate.

Cosmetic surgery is now used more frequently than plastic surgery, which has rather negative connotations.

Although a few footballers left their homelands to play in foreign leagues in the 1950s and 60s, it wasn't until the late 1970s that it started to become common. Perhaps the world's greatest ever player, Pelé, never played for a European team. The Argentinean, Diego Maradona, widely regarded as one of the best two or three players of all time, transferred to Barcelona in 1982. Nowadays, every major club in Europe has players from overseas, and many from outside Europe. Very few international players now play outside Europe.

Park Ji-Sung joined Dutch champions PSV Eindhoven in 2003, having starred for South Korea in the 2002 finals. He moved to Manchester United for £4 million in 2005.

Didier Drogba transferred to Chelsea in 2004 for £24 million. He was the Premiership's top scorer in the 2006-07 season and African footballer of the year in 2006.

Not long ago everyone agreed that vinyl records were a thing of the past. CD singles and downloading from the Internet seemed to have completely replaced the old-fashioned, black plastic.

Suddenly, though, vinyl is back in fashion. Rock bands and popular singers are demanding that their record companies make their music available on plastic and fans are rushing out to buy vinyl again.

Perhaps it's because people like the fact that a record is a physical object or because they like the artwork on vinyl records. You just can't hold and look at an MP3 download in the same way. Whatever the reason, vinyl is back and many people now believe that it is the CD that will die out.

- a. Thirty years ago people only bought music on vinyl.
- b. Vinyl started to become unpopular because of CDs.
- c. Now vinyl is popular again.
- d. Rock bands and singers don't want their music on vinyl.
- e. People think vinyl records are a nice thing to own.
- f. People don't like downloading music onto MP3s.
- g. Many people think that CDs will become more popular in the future.

NOTES ON FIRST TEXT

Culture notes

Until the late 1970s in the UK, school dinners (called school dinners despite being served at lunchtime) were traditional hot meals with meat and vegetables. Water was the only drink available. Then the government replaced these with canteens (cafeterias), where children could choose from a menu of snacks and fast food. Fizzy drinks (sodas) were also available.

Jamie Oliver is one of the best-known TV chefs in the UK and because he is a little younger than most (born in 1975), he can identify with a younger audience. He is famous for his simple, healthy food and for using organic ingredients. His show Jamie's School Dinners started in 2005. Oliver took over the canteen in a London school and tried to educate pupils and parents into eating more healthily. He was acclaimed nationally for what he achieved.

Vocabulary notes

Protein is found in foods such as meat, milk and eggs.

Vitamins are substances that in small quantities are essential for the human body. Some vitamins exist in fish, others in fruit and vegetables.

Minerals, like iron, are found in cabbage and carrots.

Crisps are thinly sliced potatoes, fried in oil. In American English they are called potato chips. In British English chips are deep-fried potatoes, served hot. These are called fries in American English.

Pupils refers to young children learning at school; students refers to those at college and university.

After a spokesperson for a fast food chain in the USA claimed that junk food was good for you, a film-maker decided to see if it was true. Morgan Spurlock ate only junk food for a month. He had breakfast, lunch and dinner at the same fast food restaurant every day. If any member of staff offered him an extra large helping, he accepted.

At the end of the month he had put on more than ten kilos and had much higher levels of cholesterol. His liver was in a very bad condition and his doctor warned him not to continue with his experiment.

Spurlock said that when you eat junk food, you feel good for a short time but then start to get stomach pains and feel depressed. By the end of his month on burgers, fries, shakes and only an occasional salad, he felt terrible. His film clearly shows the dangers of a junk food diet.
