Das past simple für abgeschlossene Ereignisse → S. 59

Das past simple wird verwendet, um über Ereignisse zu sprechen, die aus Sicht des Sprechers abgeschlossen sind. Sie können sich vor langer Zeit, aber auch erst vor Kurzem ereignet haben. Bestimmte „Signalwörter“ können das past simple auslösen, darunter ago, in the early / late 1990s, in 1999, when ..., once und back then.

Once I climbed a mountain.
I visited New Zealand ten years ago.

Das present perfect für Erfahrungen mit Bezug zur Gegenwart → S. 62, 63

Das present perfect wird verwendet, um über Erfahrungen zu sprechen, die für die Gegenwart noch relevant sind. Das present perfect wird häufig durch bestimmte „Signalwörter“ ausgelöst, darunter: ever, never, before, in your life.

Have you ever seen a man-eating tiger?
I have never been to Los Angeles.
I have climbed a mountain before.

Bildung des present perfect → S. 60

Gebildet wird das present perfect aus dem Hilfsverb have / has und der Partizipform des gewünschten Verbs. Vgl. Tabelle unregelmäßiger Verben auf den Seiten 205 - 206.

have / has + been / gone / seen / travelled / visited

Yet und already → S. 61

In Sätzen mit present perfect werden yet und already verwendet, um zu sagen bzw. in Erfahrung zu bringen, dass bzw. ob etwas bereits stattgefunden hat. Während yet an Fragen und Verneinungen angehängt wird, findet man already in Aussagesätzen.

I have already visited a kiwi farm.
I haven't been to Wellington yet.
Have you done a guided tour of a winery yet?

Der Superlativ → S. 64

Wenn über die besten und größten Erlebnisse im Leben berichtet wird, verwendet man oft den Superlativ. Neben regelmäßigen Formen, die mit the -est gebildet werden, gibt es auch unregelmäßige, die auswendig gelernt werden müssen. Bei Adjektiven (z. B. beautiful), die aus zwei oder mehr Silben bestehen, wird dem Adjektiv in der Regel the most vorangestellt.

The elephant is the biggest animal I've ever seen.
What was the most amazing holiday you've ever had?

Dear Julie

We arrived a week ago and have done many things over the last few days: We visited a kiwi farm and climbed a volcano. But we haven't visited the capital city, Wellington, yet. Yesterday we met a very nice Maori couple who invited us to spend an evening with them. They prepared a traditional Maori-style meal called the hangi. They cook it in a hot pit in the ground. I've never eaten anything so delicious in my life!

Talk to you soon

Mary
